Forecast for Saturday 13 Mar 2021

Weather: Starting dry and bright in the east but snow showers in the west will becoming more frequent and widespread as the morning goes on. Some heavy with thunder possible but snow levels will edge up to 600m in the afternoon. Strengthening winds will lead to occasional blizzard conditions on the tops. Showers becoming lighter and more scattered in the evening.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80% at first falling 30% as the showers becoming more widespread.

Visibility: Very good at first away from showers in the west with only patchy cloud then occasionally poor or very poor in heavier snow showers with cloud lowering to 600m at times, the odd lower patch in the west.
